GHI SHED REGULATIONS STUDIED; MAINTENANCE SURVEY CONSIDERED

by Sid Kastner

The regular meeting of the board of Greenbelt Homes Incorporated on Monday, Dec. 21, had to do mostly with routine matters, such as a report on the staff's maintenance survey of members, and further consideration of shed regulations. A short Greenbelt Development Corporation meeting was held before hand, at which a loan of $30,000 was authorized to help take care of the corporation's immediate cash needs; at the same time it was decided to forego payment of an $8,000 dividend to the parent company (GHI) this year.

A set of shed regulations drawn up by the aesthetics committee has been further revised by the maintenance committee. Both the original and the revised versions were presented by the manager to the board (as he had previously been directed to do), causing some perplexity since the two versions differ in some ways; for example, the maintenance committee's revision provides for two kinds of up-right sheds next to a house, whereas the original version has only one type. Director Darwin Beck moved to remand both back to the manager so that the latter could produce one coherent set of regulations. Directors Thomas White and David Lange, however, felt this would be unnecessary work for the manager. Member Matthew Amberg here interjected a complaint that the board was unnecessarily curtailing members' freedom with such regulations, which he said were also inconsistent with existing GHI regulations. He further called the board "arrogant" when the chair ruled his comments out of order. Beck's motion to remand the regulations carried, with director Katherine Keene voicing the hope that the manager could avoid the vagueness objected to by several board members.

Maintenance

Manager Roy Breashears gave the board a breakdown of results of the postcard survey of members on maintenance. Fifty-eight percent of the 1200 cards distributed were mailed back, with a generally high rating of "good to excellent" from at least 96% of the replies. He reported that the staff had gone over thirty-five work-orders on which dissatisfaction was expressed, and that most of the members concerned were now satisfied. He separately furnished a breakdown of 540 work orders by categories (gutters, asbestos siding, porches, etc.) and by time taken to complete each. Urgent items such as heating repairs take less than a week, while work on ground swales (drainage) takes about seven months to be completed. Gordon Allen commented that all this work still did not include the common areas, which several of the board agreed was true.

Townhouses

Owner contracts for the townhouses have been promised before the end of the year. Beck expressed his concern that management had not yet completed these. Both Beck and GHI president Nathan Shinderman urged quick action in the next few days. In reply to a question by David Bridge, Breashears said the final prices could not be fixed until details of payment to the building contractor had been ironed out.

The staff, with the legal help of counsel Albert Ginsberg, is considering the effect that state air pollution regulations will have on GHI operations. The manager stated he would supply the board members with copies of the regulations. Director Charles Schwan urged that technical help be freely sought, if necessary, to help interpret the regulations; maintenance superintendent David Kane agreed this might be worthwhile.

Lastly, Schwan suggested that two or three more meetings with membership participation could be usefully held in the next few months, at each of which a few topics of interest could be explored. A motion by Lange to have the Member Relations Committee take this up was passed.

MNCPPC Places Conditions On Greenbriar Approval

The Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission last week conditionally approved the preliminary subdivision plan for the proposed Greenbriar apartment project on Smith-Ewing North. The project, to be developed by Alan Kay and associates, calls for construction of 1,148 luxury-type apartments on 82+ acres located on the east and west ends of the Smith-Ewing tract (east of Baltimore-Washington Parkway).

The Greenbelt city council had at its December 7 meeting indicated its objections to the plan, and some of these objections were taken into consideration by MNCPPC in requiring that the developers meet the following conditions:

(1) The developer must satisfy MNCPPC's requirements for adequate recreation facilities — the facilities to be constructed as part of the site plan development. If this is done, it appears that MNCPPC would not require the mandatory dedication of 10 percent of the project's acreage for use as permanent open space. Instead, the developer could meet the mandatory provision by payment to MNCPPC of an amount equal to 5 percent of the assessed valuation of the total project.

(2) The developer must provide for sewer and slope easement of Mandan Road (extension of perimeter road). In addition, provision must be made for additional rights-of-way that may be needed for revision and enlargement of the existing Baltimore-Washington Parkway - Greenbelt Road interchange. The city council had urged that approval be withheld until consideration can be given to the interchange as a special study area, as proposed by the county commissioners in adopting the Greenbelt Master Plan on November 27, 1970. Apparently, MNCPPC did not feel that the project would interfere significantly with plans for expansion of the interchange.

(3) Resolution of the elementary school and park site problems. The city council had also noted that part of the Smith-Ewing tract presently zoned for single-family homes was being eyed for a Greenbelt senior high school site. MNCPPC felt that this decision would not effect the development of the 82-acre site, already zoned for R-30 apartments (14 units per acre).

MNCPPC also expressed concern about the storm water run-off from the development and how it would be handled.

APB AND PRAB RECOMMEND SENIOR HOUSING ON RIDGE ROAD TRACT

by Al Skolnik

A whole series of reports from the city's advisory boards was deposited at the city council's doorstep just before council prepared to go on its Christmas vacation. Included were three reports from the Advisory Planning Board and three reports — two formal and one informal — from the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board.

A major item — senior citizens housing — was the subject of a report by both the APB and PRAB. Both bodies recommended approval of the use of part of the 3-acre Ridge Road Center (previous Lutheran Church) site for housing for the elderly.

Senior Housing

APB Report #101 listed several conditions in approving the proposal of Senior Citizen Housing Cooperative (SCHC):

- (1) that R-10 conditional zoning be sought for the 1+ acres involved. Under this zoning with a special exception a housing complex of 100 units could be built.
- (2) that the city should exercise control over building and site plans, including retention of existing trees and grading, and that the structure should be located as far back from the street as the sewage situation permits.
- (3) that the structure be no more than three stories high in front and five in rear so as not to extend above the adjacent homes (R through N of 24 Ridge Court).

(4) that the city retain possession of the land but be fairly compensated for its loss of use of a portion of the property.

SCHC Proposal

The SCHC proposal calls for financing through an FHA-insured mortgage loan from a private lender, with the Federal Government paying all the interest above one percent. The project would consist of 40 one-bedroom and 60 efficiency apartments, a lounge and cafeteria and with approximately 30 off-street parking places. The city of Greenbelt would lease the land to SCHC for one dollar a year.

SCHC members 62 years of age or older would rent the efficiency apartments for a hoped-for $80 a month and the one-bedroom apartments for a hoped-for $100 a month. First priority would go to present residents of Greenbelt. Second priority would be for relatives of present Greenbelt residents.

Maximum income limit for members would be $5,130 a year for a single person and $6,345 a year for a couple. Approximately 40 individuals and couples whose incomes are less than $4,200 and $4,900 a year would be eligible for Federal rent supplements, which would bring their rents down to 25% of their income.

APB Conclusions

The APB concluded that there was a need for housing of this type in Greenbelt, considering the increasing number of senior citizens and the shortage of small, reasonably inexpensive dwellings in the area. It felt that the need for housing outweighs any possible adverse effects of rezoning.

The APB saw the Ridge Road location as having certain advantages: relative proximity to the center of town, ease of city enforcement of site and building control regulations, and the proximity of sewer and water mains.

The APB also noted that the poll taken of city voters at the 1969 election indicated that the use of the Ridge Road property as housing for senior citizens was the second most desired use of the land. The first was a recreation space. The APB felt that the SCHC proposal would provide a chance to use the property for both purposes.

Fences and Housing Codes

The other two APB reports dealt with fencing regulations (#99) and housing and building codes (#100). Concern had been expressed that tall fences were obstructing vision at street corners. The APB, however, made no recommendations pending legal guidance as to whether the city could prohibit fences or merely limit their height.

A question had also been raised as to the desirability of the city's adopting and enforcing its own housing and building codes. The APB came to the conclusion that it would better serve the city's purpose at this time to support a vigorous county enforcement program. It did recommend, however, that developers in Greenbelt be required to obtain a city building permit so that the city would be kept informed of upcoming construction.

SHL Recreation Building

PRAB Report #8-70 consisted of a recommendation that the council study the feasibility and desirability of building the Springhill Lake Recreation Center on the school board's property where the Springhill Lake elementary school is located. Previous thinking had been for construction of the recreation center on a corner of the proposed SHL golf course acreage which has been proposed for sale to the city.

An informal report by a PRAB study committee on pollution control was also presented to council. The report called for a meeting to be attended by PRAB, the city solicitor, council, city manager and APB, to discuss changes in the proposed water pollution and litter control ordinances. This was to be done after Emmett Nanna attended a legal seminar on pollution.

Jaycees Sponsor Candidates' Night

The Greenbelt Jaycees are sponsoring a Political Candidates Night for the seven candidates for County Executive of Prince Georges County on January 7 from 8 to 10:30 p.m. at the Greenbelt branch of the Prince Georges County Library.

The format for speaking will be opening introductions and remarks from the candidates (3 - 5 minutes each). The remaining time will be devoted to answering questions from the audience.

The seven candidates will appear in the following order: 8:00 p.m. - 8:45 p.m. — Francis J. Aluisi, Elbert M. Byrd, Jr., Leo Green; 8:55 p.m. - 9:35 p.m. — Carlton G. Beall, Arthur A. Marshall, Jr.; 9:40 p.m. - 10:30 p.m. — William W. Gullett, Steny H. Hoyer.

This will probably be the only time all seven candidates will appear in Greenbelt on the same evening. One will be chosen for County Executive. The Jaycees invite all voters to take this opportunity to hear what the candidates have to say about the issues.

Inaccuracies and Omissions

There are at least fifteen inaccuracies and omissions in the "official" Greenbelt reply to my December 17 letter open space. Because I do not detect the City Manager's usual careful style. I wonder if Mayor Francis White was ghostwriter for the City Council.

Regarding the culvert construction loan, it is stated that "the city's small assistance at no expense to its residents . . . is in the interest of the city." However, even though the developers will pay the costs, the loan will increase the city's indebtedness — or reduce its borrowing power — by $175,000 for fifteen years. This is a significant amount at a time when other possible land purchases loom importantly in the future of Greenbelt.

Leisurely deliberations over its "precise location" have delayed construction of a needed Springhill Lake recreation center even though a bond issue for the building was passed two years ago and the owners offered to donate land in their golf course for a site near an existing street intersection on higher ground than the rest of the parcel. In other words, the center could have been built and in use already, if city officials had done their homework and called for a soil study at the outset, instead of being forced to do so this year by inquiring citizens.

While we do not require our leaders to know all the answers, at least we expect them to ask the right questions.

At last the golf course is to be evaluated as flood plain and not as a potential apartment tract. According to the USDA Soil Conservation Service's Soil Study of PG County, the Bibb silt loam of this valley is poorly drained and subject to unpredictable floodings. The Survey classifies it as "severely limited" in its usefulness for recreation buildings, athletic fields and picnic areas — all of which the City's April application to HUD specifically lists as preferred uses. Its best use is simply as woodland. The land should be replanted in the type of trees suited to very wet soil. For such stream valley restoration, I think the City should certainly purchase that area of the golf course that does not adjoin road rights-of-way, at a price that is fair to the public.

Contrary to the "official" claim, the extension of Cherrywood Lane into the industrial tract was not "a part of every master plan" since 1965. As shown in the 1970 Greenbelt Master Plan and the 1969 Master Plan of Highways, this road arcs away from the industrial area and becomes part of the proposed perimeter road. However, one unpublished map — the golf course plat plan — does show another route. It also shows the perimeter road branching off through the golf course and a third, from the culvert, joining them to form an inverted A (for Access). Mayor White must agree that there has been no hearing, no referendum, even no publicity on the fact that by buying open space bordering the right-of-way, the City commits future tax money to the construction of these roads, the cost of which should properly be assessed against the benefiting properties. It would be quite a favor to relieve the developers of their financial responsibilities.

Regarding the Furey tract, there are two main differences between it and any other property that the City is considering for purchase. First, it is not owned by an absentee landlord. That land is a lady's home and the sawmill there is her brother-in-law's livelihood. Second, it is not in Greenbelt. Whether or not it can be acquired or annexed requires a court ruling and not an official's flat pronouncement.

Now, whom shall we believe about the route of the perimeter road through that tract? The December 24 "City" statement has it very definitely running "along the northern edge with much of the right-of-way width being located on other property." Is the "other property" the Animal Disease Station of the Agricultural Research Center? In the Greenbelt News Review of March 26, Mr. Giese is reported to have said that the farm did not want to release land that had been used for diseased animal experiments. The truth is that the road is not yet surveyed and platted. Nobody, not even the Council's ghostwriter, can say with finality just where it will go.

GHI Roofs

I am very sorry that my question at the GHI "steam valve" Board session (Dec. 17) received such imperceptive attention in your article on the 24th. The replies at the meeting posed more interesting questions than they answered.

Try this as an instance: during my nine years in a slated roofed unit, did I really contribute to only five thousand dollars (did my hearing serve me right?) worth of roofing reserves? If so, what questions does this raise about the division and allocation of my monthly charges in comparison with those of the frames? If not so, then who authorized diversion of these reserves, in what amounts, for what purposes and with what prospect of replacement?

In either case, how much "preservation" is the remaining amount expected to accomplish? Five roofs?

The report that the built-up (generally called "flat") roof replacement program is incomplete found me as totally unprepared as the foregoing. These roofs, speaking from a conservative structural point of view, are no more a thirty-year roof than is one of asphalt shingles.

It may be the height of profligacy to replace such an expensive item as a roof before there is demonstrated need. Yet as we move farther beyond the expected roof life, adequate reserves for total replacement at current prices become only half of the necessary considerations: can we muster enough contractor capability for simultaneous performance in case of a rash of failures? Or do we invite added expense through water damage?

Here we have two more questions on reserve adequacy and program status. Should we still inquire after the frame roofs? I hope reassuring replies to all of these will be forthcoming in the GHI Newsletter: you will note that copies of this letter are promised to GHI's General Manager and to Chairman of the Audit, Finance and Maintenance Committees.

Wrong Impressions

I object to Mrs. Cohen's recent letter to the Editor which distorted the true facts about the City's efforts to solve recreational and road problems.

As co-chairman of a city organization, her careless and reckless abandon of truth could give residents some wrong impressions.

The City's residents have spoken for their needs. Fortunately, with a responsive Mayor, like Francis White, and a hard working City Council, Greenbelt's needs will be met.

Applause for Council

To the Editor:

As a resident of Springhill Lake, I applaud Mayor Francis White and the Greenbelt City Council for their efforts to provide a recreation center and park area for our community. This development of 11,000 people, which makes up over half the population of Greenbelt, has virtually no indoor or outdoor recreational facilities or open park spaces. Our children severely lack the ball fields, picnic areas and recreation building which Greenbelt's city government proposes to develop on the Springhill Lake Golf Course property.

In a recent letter to this paper, Mrs. Cohen, a resident of that part of Greenbelt which has much parkland and readily accessible recreation facilities, condemns the actions of the City government for trying to provide similar advantages to the Springhill Lake section of the city. The citizens of Springhill Lake — not the developers — have for some time pressed for a recreation facility. We have been strongly supported by residents of all parts of Greenbelt. It should be noted that Mrs. Cohen, while condemning land for Springhill Lake, has, at the same time, consistently favored acquisition of recreational lands for the area of the city where she resides.

In attacking the City's program for Springhill Lake, Mrs. Cohen implies that the members of the City government have been derelict in their duty and have committed themselves to pay an inflated price for the golf course property. In fact, no commitment has been made to purchase the land at any price. The implication that the City Council passed up an offer to acquire, as a gift, a site for the recreation building is also untrue. At a meeting some time ago in the Greenbelt Municipal Building, Mr. Harold Kramer, Lake, made an offer of free land one of the developers of Springhill on which the recreation building could be constructed. At the same meeting Mr. Kramer also opened up discussion on the golf course property. He made it quite clear at that time (I was present and heard him) that the offer of the free land was in no way contingent upon the City's purchase of the golf course. The site for the planned recreation building was Greenbelt's for the asking whether Greenbelt purchased the adjacent golf course property or not.

In this densely settled community, the eleven-acre golf course property represents the important difference between just an indoor center and a total indoor/outdoor recreational facility in a park setting. This open space is badly needed.

All in all, I feel that Mayor White and the City administration have acted prudently and fairly in seeking land for a recreation facility, finding funds to finance this project and, most importantly, responding to the needs of its total population.

Disheartened

To the Editor:

As a resident of Springhill Lake, I was disheartened, to say the least, reading Mrs. Rhea Cohen's letter in last week's News Review.

Mayor Francis White and the City Council are to be congratulated for their efforts in acquiring the much needed lands.

The land being considered for a recreational area is urgently needed. Mrs. Cohen is not a resident of Springhill Lake and therefore is not familiar with day-to-day living here. She has distorted the facts surrounding the land acquisition in Springhill Lake.

One cannot help but wonder if Mrs. Cohen's "facts" concerning the City of Greenbelt as well as Springhill Lake are politically motivated.

Wants Rent Increase

To the Editor:

In rebuttal to Mr. Schwan's article.

If Mr. Schwan is sensitive to the words "chattel Mortgage," perhaps a lien on the property at 6% may suit him better. Whichever way it is worded, the fact remains it is not a gift, and will extend only until the mortgage is paid. May I suggest some moneys may be collected from the 18 rented units presently paying about $70 a month rent with the exception of two 2 bedroom and one 3 bedroom houses. This gave the members a yearly income of about $16,000.00 not to be listed as investment by the board but income for the members.

On Dec. 10 there was a motion by Mr. Schwan, seconded by Mr. Beck, to charge prevailing market rates on all member owned (rented) units, rather than the 15% above monthly charges to members. This 15% is not reflected in their present rental. If you should stay within the 15% at present, the end unit should rent for $84.00 and the middle one for $82.00.

I would like the board to eliminate the phrase, "Effective at time of new rental." It makes a mockery of the motion. You don't believe anyone will move?

When and if the board exercises the right to the 30 days termination clause, I can only look at their motion as an exercise in semantics, not substance. In plain English, "You don't want to increase the rental."

Besides, the units thus vacated can be allocated to needy members, while his unit can be sold, giving him a modicum return on his investment. This also makes him eligible for rent supplement from state or county.

City Notes

By official estimates, the majority of the city's Christmas trees this year escaped the bonfire on Braden Field. They have been converted instead into mulch for use by the Parks crew in tree planting and in fixing up municipal playgrounds.

Refuse collections got a little behind during the holiday week, but on Monday and Tuesday, December 28 and 29, all members of the Public Works crew were on the job, using both regular trash trucks and open body trucks to haul away Christmas debris. The trailer parked near Candy Cane City helped in part to alleviate the trash control problem for residents, although city officials agreed that at least two other trailers would have been required to handle all the deposits.

Snow Removal Job

Everybody took a holiday on New Year's Day except the police and the public works crew. The fact of the holiday made the snow removal job in some ways easier (with very little traffic to disrupt operations) and in some ways more difficult (with parked cars blocking the streets throughout the city.)

There was more than adequate warning of the impending snowstorm. All day before the storm hit, the city crew worked to get ready for it. Plows were hooked up and equipment checked and readied. Trucks were loaded with salt.

First to go out on Thursday were four salt trucks. By early Thursday evening six or seven plows followed. Throughout the night five or six plows and one or two salt trucks kept working, 12 to 14 men staying on duty. By Friday morning all streets were passable. Snow removal crews still worked, however, on Saturday, cleaning up parking lots and widening cleared streets as parked cars were driven off. Clean-up operations continued again on Monday.

A Man of Management

CARLTON G. BEALL

The Best Qualified Candidate For County Executive

Prince George's County must have a strong and experienced hand at the helm if it is to successfully hold on its course to benefit county citizens of today and tomorrow. What is needed is an able, experienced administrator a man fully dedicated to public service not politics!

To turn the future of Prince George's County over to the politicians is to court disaster! The electorate clearly indicated, by voting for the County Executive type of government, that it wanted to take control of county administration away from politicians. The charter, provided that political parties, as such, be excluded. Yet from the start, the political parties were lining up support for their chosen hand-picked candidates!
